GAGE Household

GAGE Household Continued

A household may be either a person living alone or a group of people, either related or unrelated, who live together as a single unit in the sense that they have common housekeeping arrangements (that is, share or are supported by a common budget).

A standard definition of a household is “a group of people who live together, pool their money, and ‘eat from the same pot’”. It is possible that individuals who are not members of the household may be residing with the household at the time of the survey. In most cases, but not all, someone who does not live with the household during the survey period is not a current member of the household.

- Household members are not necessarily related by blood or by marriage.
- Not all those who are related and are living in the same compound or dwelling are necessarily members of the same household.
- Polygamous men and extended family systems
- Head of Household (may not reside in home) is the person commonly regarded by the household members as their head.
- The GAGE household survey will be conducted with the female decision maker for the 8 CR (except in a few exceptions discussed in more detail later).

A Few Additional Notes on GAGE Households

- Includes all small children and infants
- We will include domestic help (and children of domestic help), lodgers, or friends, who usually live here but may not “eat from the same pot”.
- We will include other people that are typically members of your household but have lived elsewhere for 3 months or more due to migration for work.
- We will go over this in a lot more detail when we start on the survey instruments.

GAGE Core Respondent

- The core respondent for the GAGE survey household survey is a boy or girl who is age 10 -12 or 15- 17 at the time of listing.
- The GAGE survey will only be conducted among households with at least 1 eligible respondent.

Household Interviews: Enumerator Guidelines

- In the field, each household is targeted up to three times, if initially unavailable.
- If the interviewer is unable to interview any of the selected GAGE households, the interviewer must contact his/her supervisor as soon as possible.
- The supervisor will investigate the problem and as soon as possible and if necessary instruct the interviewer on the replacement household to be interviewed.
- The replacement household and reason for replacement must be clearly documented.
- Locating the households and beginning the interviews should not be delayed. Prudently, the interviewer should plan their interview schedule within a community. Likely the interviewer will have to make two or three separate visits over different days to each GAGE household to complete all survey instruments.
